Cytochrome P450 and P-glycoprotein (P-gp) are membrane proteins implicated in the absorption of drugs. The possibility of a significant effect of these proteins on oral drug absorption when they are co-administered with other drugs is a new and interesting issue. This study has been designed to evaluate the effect of co-administration of two drugs that interact with MDR1 and MRP1. A two-way crossover study was conducted in twelve subjects to evaluate the effect of carbamazepine or quinidine as a single or co-administered drug on oral bioavailability of digoxin, which is a substrate for MDR1 and MRP1. Serum levels of digoxin were measured using a HPLC method. The
