F40E7002D Ã .Church of Saint Michael, Outeiro The Church of Saint Michael (,), also known as the Outeiro Santo dos Templários () or Módulos' Church, is a small Romanesque building that gives name to the parish of Outeiro (in), in Santarém Municipality, Portugal. History It is uncertain when the church was built, but some historians affirm that it was constructed in the 11th century and its walls were completed in the 12th century. In fact, other historians affirm that it was built in the 15th century. The church was named after the Knights Templar who built the nearby Fort of Silvões. The church is located in a former military property, which dates from the end of the 17th century. It was destroyed in 1908. The church is listed as an object of cultural heritage by the Portuguese Institute of Preventive Heritage. Architecture The church is small with an nave and a transept. The church has three naves, the central one is taller with arcades in the Romanesque style. The lateral naves are narrower. It has a central bell tower of two levels and a wooden door in an Outeiro Gothic style. The interior has altars and paintings in the late Romanesque style. The central nave and the lateral ones have chapels and the transept a double one with a high choir. The chapels of the lateral naves have a Guaridim style. The bell tower has an Outeiro Gothic style and its bell is of bronze.
