Enjoy!Q: How to repair the terrain on the top of a ridge that has been damaged by wind I have used some old broken stones from an old wall as base for a terrace which was making a nice view. Now the wind is really strong here and has damages the top of the ridge, it looks like this It is made out of ice, very hard to climb up. Is there a good repair solution for this? There is a risk the wind can throw the ice up at high speed. A: If the ice is snow that has been compacted into hard ice, the easiest way is probably to dig a hole and throw the ice into it. (It'll be compacted into ice because there's more oxygen in the air, and it's not molten like you get on a road that's been potholed). If the ice is just frozen water, then it's too fragile for anything you're likely to find around you. South African cricketer is the new owner of Indian e-commerce store C

Hi guys, In a few months it will be 2013. There will be a new version of Windows 8, and I want to create some icons for it, and I have a question about the licensing terms of these Icons for the Windows 8 Icon Pack, it would be nice if I can use this in commercial use, but if not, would it be fine if I would modify the pictures and give them to my customers as well? I have never released any icon packs before. Regards, Dan Dan Kohl Pimp Yassin's pack, you're going to love it - Free version here: A pack dedicated to window decoration with shadows and reflection. It contains: - Buttons with reflection (common, start, back) - System icons (common, start, back, menu, clock) - Appearance (settings, refresh, minimize, close, minimize) - Graphics files for windows 8 - Graphics files for Mac OS X A pack dedicated to windows 7 (no new icons), new version here: Hi vievernav, Well that's for you to figure out, really. Heres the one with the worst performance. I would help you do a better job with the editor, but im not really good with the programming part :p, maybe I should learn it. Anyways, icons in the xp pack are vectorized. I took a fresh start on this, its very simple one
