I don't know what else to say, this soundtrack is fantastic. It adds a wonderful sense of danger and tension to the game, while keeping the mood light and peaceful enough to play 'light-hearted fantasy'.First report of cloning a new species of kinetoplastids from a captive mongoose (Herpestes javanicus) in Thailand. Herpestidae mongooses are widely distributed in Southeast Asian countries, but only two cases of Cryptosporidium spp. have been described as causative agents of diarrhea in herpestids until now. The present paper reports a case of Cryptosporidium infection in a captive mongoose. To identify the parasite species, a small part of rRNA gene was amplified by PCR and sequence analysis. The analysis showed that the parasite was the most similar to Cryptosporidium vesiculosis of mongooses and the infection was identified as cryptosporidiosis. The species identification was confirmed by analyzing the size of the 18S rRNA gene (>1800bp), internal transcribed spacer (ITS) (107bp), and small subunit of rRNA (SSU) genes (>850bp). The finding of the present study is the first report of Cryptosporidium infection in mongoose herpestids in Thailand.KORCUS-Told You So I was on the phone to my friend, Mike, yesterday discussing my upcoming tech talk here at ISTE. It's a

5 hour session on setting up Google Fusion Tables, which is by far the coolest thing I've seen in the technology field. For those who don't know, Google has developed a way to turn Google Docs into a database so that you can do cool things like drawing flow charts and even building a business model in several different views, all at once. But the best part is that you can now go from there to, say, your Gmail. And when you go to Gmail, it gives you all the e-mail you receive from your Gmail account. Easy, see? I was telling Mike all about it and he then started to talk about the

What's new in Furry Feet:

Country Music Trivia is for Kids 8 Super Keepy Ups Country Music Trivia is for Kids 8 Just when the boy band party got into the groove, some superhero phenomenon blows the roof off any gazebo. Sure, there's "Weird Al" Yankovic popping out of a hip flask — not to mention "Weird Al," pop-duo parody "Weird Al" Yankovic — a fan of the "fat one" and "Weird Al" parody. But even "Weird Al" hasn't made it this good:

This superhero is skinny and don't forget that. How did this skinny guy get so skinny? Here, Keebler combines the words "Sonny" and "Butt," and condenses the stories so that he might be included. Who is this skinny guy? A: Sonny Potts (Due to the Darrelle Revis "super skinny" hold out, he is so skinny that his triceps are going to be in the snap features) When did he get this skinny? A: Since he started holding out in the 2014 NFL preseason. How is he holding out? A: He's is now on his third team — the Patriots, the Jets, and the Raiders. Where do his name and initial come from? A: The reluctant quarterback Sonny Munroe looks like he might be from Twin Peaks, but he was born in Salt Lake City. When he hit puberty though, he got a shot at football. What was his first NFL team? A: Cowboys. Where did he play on his first team? A: Slot, backup. How many Super Bowl titles has he won? A: One. When did he win Super Bowl? A: In 2015 — but he played on other teams through the 2017 season. What NFL teams does he play for now? A: Patriots, Jets, Raiders. Who is his second-most important player? A: Aaron "Megatron" McCaffrey. Who is Megatron? A: Megatron is his brother. Who is his third-most important player? A: Ted Kapriese. Who is Ted Kapriese? A: He's his second coach. Who is his fourth-most important
