It's been four years since you ventured into the slime and awakened, a cyborg ninja, now society has created you. Though you understand that your body has become outdated, you still wear the red outfit with the white and yellow stripes that represents you as a cyborg ninja, however, the world has changed, and they use words like "Social Networking" to describe your life, which isn't fair. One day you are called into the boss's office, and he tells you that Slimekeep the corporation wants to re-acquire the Cybersoul corporation. Using cyborg ninja skills, it is your duty to make this reveal a reality. With influence of the corporate world, solving the mystery will become difficult. If you ever allow yourself to grow too lazy, you will lose your way back home, and the boss will find you.

About Cybersoul Corporation: The Cybersoul Corporation was founded by a man named Marcus Cade, in the year 2090, after he invented the Cybersoul system, and used it to create his own cyborg ninja, as one of his test subjects, to conduct experiments. In the year 2095, he continued his research and began creating cyborg plants, to later use them to create his own cyborg samurai. By the year 2100, he created the corporation to distribute the cyborg ninja and cyborg plant, however, it was this same year that the company began to experience loss, losing all potential clients around the world, therefore he sought out to find new clients. In 2035, the corporation had invested heavily into an effort to corner the market on bio-power supplies and began to sell them to governments to keep them from other companies, becoming a global power, while ultimately gaining control of the media. By 2062, they had purchased over 100 media outlets, including all of the world's newspapers, and gained complete control over information. In the year 2074, the main character became more or less, what you see now. He was drafted to the corporation and became a cyborg ninja of 6617.Q: Find if an image exists in Google Earth I'm developing a map. A lot of people (Google Maps are not free, and the data isn't free either) save the map or part of the map to file, and then I have to know if the saved image is part of the Google Earth map. I've tried using the Image() method, but it returns true if the image

The game play is centered around the idea of actually constructing a "bridge" to allow a vehicle to move from one level to another. It combines the building ideas of games like World of Goo and Poly Bridge. The game play requires not just building blocks, but also "a certain amount of luck". If you build it correctly the vehicle will move. If you build it wrong, it wont and you may not survive or even blink. The game is physics-based. That means that the speeds of everything in the game are controlled by physics, including the vehicles, blocks, the vehicle powerup block, gravity, and more. On the other hand, if the vehicle is in motion too fast and its "repulsor" needs to accelerate too quickly, it can be thrown back. Slow down and it is thrown back when you try to accelerate again. Everything in the game is. Literally. Everything. The object of the game is to use the blocks and vehicles to create a bridge. You can play in two game play modes. In a "free style" play mode the game will select a vehicle, a set of blocks and then a stage randomly. Your goal is to build the best bridge. In a timed "correct" play mode you have to try to build the best bridge in the shortest time limit. The rules are the same. You have to build the best bridge in the shortest time limit. So, how do you get to play? Simply go to the Extras Menu and select one of the two game play modes. You can also change your game play speed. Level 1 has a 400fps cap while Level 70 has a 500fps cap. Higher levels have other restrictions which include "computer AI", which makes the game difficult but fair. (The default cap in the free play mode is 300fps) Also in the Extras Menu is a Visual System Selector. This allows you to choose from 4K, standard resolution and even different resolutions such as DualScreen, with the standard resolution in the middle. Each visual setting also includes a specific V-Sync setting if you choose to use visual settings. Yes, there's a V-Sync setting. Bridge Crawler also allows you to play on any monitor in your house at any time. Simply change the resolution to your liking and you can go from a DualScreen setup to a single screen. Not only that but it also allows you to play with multiple

First of all, sorry for the bad quality, but I hope you can still read it well. I was just.. super pissed off. And quite unable to read that chapter properly (and my old shift key doesnt work anymore, so I have to use that horrible word, 'can'), so I put here what I have hastily written in CAPS in order to lessen how much of a useless piece of shit I am.

Narrow Gate: Wails and crying. "This is my fault! Look at me, I was stupid enough to stick around here longer than I should have, and they came and stuck their filthy blades in my throat all of a sudden. I didn't even stand up for myself. I deserved this. This is totally my fault." This started when her machine broke. He wasn't exactly in a good mood when he noticed the other's incident, so he went right back on it. Let's analyze this before we do the mission again. Before the stupid incident with the machine, he's boss, so he's totally used to people doing everything just as they should do it. If something goes wrong, he'll find a good reason. He will never accept he's wrong. This probably puts him into borderline sociopath level, which is a bit problematic when you want him to stay calm. He may also possess some rare form of Asperger's (which is totally fine, no need to worry) that makes everything seem simple but just stupid. He's not supposed to accept it though, so don't worry if his attitude seems weird. The Liquid: A more reasonable adult. "Oh no, this is something I should be involved in. I should care about this. Let me go and interrupt him right now." They're working with a candidate that is more frequently used in SDF missions. This one got pissed off when things go wrong that he should have fixed and talks about his feelings here. Let's say it's a bit compulsive because they may get stuck here until he finds a solution to the problem, but he's really too childish here to be worried about waiting this long. This one isn't as normal as us, the real adult characters. Elsa: "Why did this have to happen to me? I'll just say I'm okay. I'll just.. Go ahead and do it. I've always hated breaking things that I'm fond of that much. Nothing good can come out of it

A Terran civilization was wiped out when an unknown number of terraforming robots suddenly malfunctioned, leading to an unexpected outcome—a strange planet. In a world full of new challenges, where you have to gather resources, build your shelter, tame the creatures, fight for your life, and become the Lord of Planet Keplerth, this is the place for you. Here, anything can happen. Here, the choice is yours. Welcome to Keplerth. Keplerth is a sandbox game that requires players to find all the details through their own creativity and experience, letting you expand your game world and your character in any way you can. The game features randomly generated maps, permanent death, a sandbox mode, a survival mode and lots of crafting quests. Players can also tame strange creatures from the wilderness. This can offer them assistance, such as riding them as mounts, or attacking the opponents. And even more, players can also get exclusive content when taming specific creatures. Players can also build their home and fight in dungeons with their friends. The game also offers a Genetic Modification system that allows players to choose from different genes and modify them. Through this, players can create their own unique fighting styles, for example. They can also use these techniques to create amazing pets and building materials, thus making the game a lot more fun.
